

Prof. Enver Roshi, MD, MPH, PhD

Born on the 4th of June, 1961

Currently, Dean of the Faculty of Public Health, University of Medicine, Tirana, Albania.

M.D 1986: Faculty of Medicine, University of Tirana. In 1995: Specialization in Hygiene, Faculty of Medicine, University of Tirana. In 1997: International Master of Public Health-Brawn School of Public Health and Community Medicine, Hebrew University, Jerusalem, Israel.

Specialization in Family Medicine in 2000 at the Faculty of Medicine, University of Tirana.

January 2006-May 2006: JFDP (Junior Faculty Development Program) in the field of Public Health in Georgia Southern University, USA.

Lecturer of Environmental Health in 1991 and from 1997 lecturer of epidemiology, public health in Faculty of Medicine in undergraduate and postgraduate level .

Academic Title “Professor”, Faculty of Medicine, University of Tirana.

Since May 2006 to present, adjunct Faculty staff “Visiting Professor” in the field of Epidemiology in the Jian Ping Hsu Colleague School of Public Health in the Georgia Southern University in Georgia, USA.

Since 2003 to present—Professor (lecturer) in the State University of Tetovo, Macedonia.

From 2010 to 2013: Director of National Public Health Insitute.

Founder of the teaching program for the Bachelor of Public Health, started for the first time in Albania in 2007 at the Faculty of Medicine, University of Tirana.

Founder of the 2-year program of Post-graduate specialization in Public Health at the Faculty of Medicine, University of Tirana.

Published several papers with impact factor in international scientific journals and member of EUPHA and ASPHER as well as Stability Pact Project on Public Health Training and Research in South Eastern Europe (2001-2010). Author and co-author of several books.